

John DeBrocke

Executive Advisory Board Member - CEO - Achievement Awards

John is an independent thinker and leader with entrepreneurial spirit. Throughout his career, he has helped his clients visualize how they can achieve their strategic goals while minimizing risk during the design, implementation, and deployment of complex enterprise software solutions. He has extensive experience in clearly articulating his value proposition to large enterprise management teams. His extensive contacts include the small business startups to the Fortune 100's.

John has an Industrial Engineering degree and graduate studies from DePaul University. He taught IT Advanced Project Management for five years at Northwestern University Business School. He has extensive experience structuring and leading strategy planning sessions with clients to analyze, plan, and execute enterprise solutions. John conducts executive level strategic planning sessions on current and future technologies, and, therefore, is able to assist organizations realize long term strategic goals.

As a past single father, he is very supportive of and in alignment with ATKF beliefs and practices.